POP GEERS DIES IN THE HARNESS

Veteran Driver Thrown in Race and Fatally Injured.

PASSES AWAY AT WHEELING.

Death Attributed by Physicians to Shock and Internal Injuries—Veteran Was Skillful Driver and Noted For His Success in Developing Harness Horses—"Geers Day" Has Fatal Termination.

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 4.—Edward Geers, 73, veteran harness race driver of the Grand Circuit, was injured fatally when his horse stumbled and he fell from his sulky in the second heat of the second race on the state fair program. He was unconscious when picked up on the track and was taken immediately to Ohio Valley general hospital, where he died without regaining consciousness.

It was Geers' first accident of any consequence in his long and spectacular history as a driver of thoroughbreds.

Geers was thrown more than 15 feet ahead of the horse and suffered injuries which caused his death three hours later. Death was attributed to shock and internal injuries.

The day had been set aside as "Geers day" at the state fair, and a great crowd had turned out to honor the premier reinsman who for 50 years had been making history on the American trotting turf. The first heat of the 2:14 trot ended by Geers taking third place. In the next heat, while he was attempting to pass Santa the Great, which was leading the field, Miladi Guy was seen to stumble and fall. Other horses in the race were swung wide of the fallen horse and driver by inches as they thundered past. Geers was rendered unconscious by the fall and was placed upon a stretcher and rushed to the hospital. When Miladi Guy stumbled her head went through her forelegs, the mare almost tumbling a somersault as she fell. The sulky, lifted high as the harness held, was twisted sideways before it crashed to the track. Geers was thrown through the air to fall with terrific force 15 feet ahead of the horse, and lay motionless as the other horses flashed by.

Geers was a skillful driver and noted for his success in developing champions. Not only did he take several world's single harness records, both trotting and pacing, but he also took the team records in both classes and held the world's tripartite team record, won in one of the most spectacular events ever seen on a race track. This latter achievement was made in 1893, when he drove Belle Hamlin, Justina and Globe, hitched three abreast, a mile in 2:14, to a high four-wheeled skeleton wagon.

MINES INSPECTED

Three Ohio Coal Mines May Be Opened For Operation Soon.

Columbus, Sept. 4.—According to Jerome Watson, mine chief of the state department of industrial relations, three Ohio coal mines, one of which has been closed for 11 years, may be opened for operation soon. Watson and several assistants explored the Blue Rock mine, near Beckwith, Muskingum county. It has been closed since the flood of 1913. The state officials will also investigate the Lincoln mine at Blaine, Belmont county, owned by the Lorain Coal and Dock company of Columbus. It was closed last month on account of fire. Doanville mine No. 2, at Doanville, Perry county, owned by George Johnson of Columbus, which was sealed because of fire, will also be inspected to determine whether it can be operated with safety.

Mexicans Held in Connection With Hold Up of Train.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 4.—Three Mexicans are under arrest here in connection with the attempted holdup of a Rock Island passenger train near Meade, Kansas, in which two deputy sheriffs were wounded in a revolver battle with the bandits. WIDOW ACCUSES GARAGE OWNER

Testifies He Shot and Killed Her Husband.

INQUEST OPENS AT HERRIN

Employee of Garage Swears That Sheriff Galligan and His Deputy Fired the Shots That Killed Reid, Described as a Bystander—Testimony Presented at Probe Into the Herrin (Illinois) Tragedy.

Herrin, Ill., Sept. 4.—At the inquest into the killing of six men in last Saturday's clash, Mrs. Chester Reid, widow of one of the men slain, accused John H. Smith, Herrin klan leader, of murdering her husband.

"I tell you John Smith killed Chester," she cried. "We were parked near his garage and Chester got out and went over there. Smith met him with a sawed-off shotgun. Chester called to him not to shoot, but he did, and Chester fell in the street."

Dave Sisk, an employee of the garage, testified that Sheriff Galligan and his deputy fired the shots that killed Chester Reid, who has been generally described as a bystander.

Sisk also testified that he saw Thomas holding Green Dunning, one of the three klanmen slain, and that this was just a moment before Dunning dropped from several bullet wounds. He added, however, that he did not see the shooting of Dunning, and that he could not say who fired the fatal shot at him.

It was the decree of Captain Harold Bigelow, in command of the 18 militiamen who have been kept here to prevent a probable renewal of civil warfare, that prevented the local klan from appearing in public in the klan regalia at the funeral of one of the victims of Saturday's clash between klanmen and Sheriff Galligan and his force, and again it was Captain Bigelow's order that dissuaded the sheriff from coming over from Marion to get the automobile he had intended to seize Saturday when the clash resulted.

LA FOLLETTE WINS

Senator in Control of Republican Party in Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Sept. 4.—Primary returns show that Senator LaFollette is in control of the Republican party in Wisconsin. Governor John J. Blaine, endorsed by LaFollette for reelection, is leading his nearest opponent, A. R. Hirst, by 45,000 votes. Fred R. Zimmerman, endorsed for secretary of state by LaFollette, holds an overwhelming lead over Theodore Dammann, Governor Blaine and two other candidates. Solomon Levitan, endorsed by LaFollette, has a safe lead over Henry Johnson for the Republican nomination for state treasurer.

Results of the primary indicate that the efforts of the Coolidge forces to break control of the independent candidate in his native state have failed.

These figures show the male population is increasing 1 per cent faster than females. August leads all months for child births and has fewer deaths with the exception of June and July.

LEAVE TOMORROW FOR BOSTON

Lieutenants Smith and Nelson Will Have as Companions Lieutenants Wade and Ogden, Who Were Forced Out of the Around-the-World Flight Last Month When Their Plane Was Wrecked at Sea.

The fliers, Lieutenants Lowell H. Smith and Erik Nelson, with their mechanics, Lieutenants Leslie T. Arnold and Lieutenant John Harding, hopped off at Hawkes Bay, Newfoundland.

War department officials announced the aviators would leave Pictou for Boston Friday morning. When Smith and Nelson leave Pictou they again will have as companions Lieutenant Leigh Wade and Lieutenant H. H. Ogden, who were forced out of the flight last month when their plane was wrecked at sea. In a new plane Wade and Ogden will continue the flight until its completion in California. Wade lost his plane on the flight from the Orkney islands to Iceland, but has received a new machine at Pictou.

Coming down out of the north, with the worst stages of their long journey behind them, the American army world fliers are planning to close their remaining gaps between them and "home" in quick order. Lieutenant Lowell Smith and his companions hope to continue on toward Boston Friday, with a stop at St. John, New Brunswick, for fuel. "Farce" and "Comedy"

A farce differs from a comedy in the emphasis placed on the plot. In a farce the characters are what the plot requires them to be, while in a comedy the plot is subordinated to the characters. The "Farce de Pathelin" is considered the most famous, its authorship being attributed to different persons. Generally, Pierre Blanchet, who lived in the fifteenth century, is credited with it, but some think it was written by the poet Villon.

Good Breed of Dog

The schipperke dog got his name from being so frequently seen on canal barges of Belgium, where he makes a good "watch" and is used oftentimes as an exterminator of rats. Doubtless this breed is in some ways related to the "wolf spitz" of central Europe. He is covered with glossy, straight, black hair, and the whole of his neck and breast is covered with an erect frill of longer hair.

Beautiful Patience

Faith, Hope and Love, once felt, in a peaceable and sociable hour, a plastic impulse in their nature; together they set to work and created a lovely image, a Pandora in the higher sense of the term, namely, Patience.—Goethe.

Theresa de Maron

Theresa de Maron, a sister of the celebrated Raphael Mengs, was born at Auszig, in Bohemia. From her earliest youth she excelled in enamel, miniature and crayon paintings. She retained her talents in full vigor until her death at the age of eighty, in the year 1806. She married the Cavalier Maron, an Italian artist of great merit.—Chicago Journal.

Not All There

Club Steward (to member who has asked if any of his friends are in the club)—Yes, sir, his lordship, seated in the coffee room, sir, with three large whiskies and sodas, sir, a-talkin' to 'isself, sir, and I don't think he knows that he's alone.—London Passing Show.

"Boxing the Compass"

To "box the compass" means to re-rite in consecutive order the 32 points of the mariner's compass. The phrase also has a popular meaning. When a person adopts successively all possible opinions on a question he is said to box the compass.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge left a Boston hospital where he has been under treatment since his operation.

His Eyesight Restored and Love Renewed

By MILDRED GOODRIDGE

"BLIND"

"Stone blind, Roslyn Moore has been for a year. It came about through the premature explosion of a flashlight while an operator was taking a view of the studio in which he, Roslyn Moore, had painted 'The Deluge.'"

"It must have broken his heart to know, later, that his picture was famous, but his eyes forever closed to its beauties."

The picture brought him a fortune. That, of course, made affliction more bearable, but at once Moore took up music. He is a happy man through all his hard adversity."

"Ah! it is pathetic," was the response. "See, how he moves along." The two speakers were Parisians, in the Latin quarter. They were regarding and speaking of Roslyn Moore. Their brief colloquy had told all the story there was to tell.

Just now, came in hand, he was cautiously groping his way down the pavement leading away from the entrance to his hotel. He had not gone ten steps when the ragged newsboy at the corner stand ran up to him.

It was to seize one arm gently and with infinite eager tenderness lead the unfortunate across a narrow alley.

There was a little breathing spot of a park a square further on. It was here that Moore spent a portion of his day, usually surrounded by the poor children from the near tenements.

In order to reach the park Moore had to cross a broad esplanade. At its inner edge a young girl of eighteen kept a cheap flower stand. Pity that he could not see Cecile, as her face brightened at the first glimpse of him! Her small, pretty hand would steal shyly into his own. Proudly, flutteringly she would lead him across.

"Thanks, mademoiselle, you help to make my life beautiful," always Moore would say, but never an audible response. Only a soft pressure of the guiding hand, and then—a flower.

Finally, for a week Cecile missed her friend. She grew pale and thin and distressed. She watched from her little booth hourly. Moore was gone, and with him her sole interest in life, the sunshine, heaven!

There came to her the woman in charge of the little hotel one day. She placed a rouleau of gold pieces upon the counter of the flower stand.

"See, Cecile," she said, softly, "the maestro has gone to see a wonderful surgeon in London. He bade me bring you the money, and each day you are to take your daintiest blossoms to the little ones in the park. He left the word, too. It was this: A kiss through me of hope, of courage, of gratitude," and the woman pressed her lips to the brow of the pure, innocent girl.

Cecile burst into tears. She clasped the hand of the kindly dame, kneeling. Then she stood transfixed as in a dream. The kiss—from him! A coronet seemed to wreath her brown. She was aroused only as she heard some one address the departing messenger.

"The maestro is gone, I hear?" was uttered.

"Yes," came the answer, "but to return to the spot where loving hearts made of life a paradise. We pray for him—that his sight may be restored, as he hopes."

"Ah, indeed, may heaven be merciful to return him to see his grand masterpiece in the salon!"

"He said not."

"Then why—what?"

"Cecile, he said—" The voices died away, the soulful eyes of the girl stole startlingly after them. "Cecile!" Oh, what meant this, "A kiss"—"Cecile!" The quivering face sank deep in a bowl of roses, as if imploring the flower fairies to tell the mystery.

She hid her hand in her bosom, blushing as though to shut away the sight of a telltale. Had those tender fingers told the story of her devotion, had the thrill of her gentle soul permeated her touch of the hand she so cherished?

And then one day—oh, love immortal! There came out from the entrance of the hotel the familiar form. But there was no cane now. He walked erect, his bearing that of some knight, gladness, in rhapsody with life and all its meizage. A new glory shone from the noble face, sightless no longer. Straight up to the palpitating Cecile he advanced, both hands extended. And there he stood, silent, motionless, while he gazed into the very soul of the lovely girl.

"Cecile! Cecile!" he said softly at length—"to see you first, my dream, my thought—reality! Come—I am yours, you are mine."

Her hand went tremulously to her lips. In mute signal she motioned that she was dumb.

"I knew it not until the day I went away," he said, the more fervently encircling her dear hand. "And then I knew how I loved her who loved me—blind, stricken, helpless. But your eyes—they speak, your soul, it speaks! Carita—how happy we shall be!"

And so it was. There was a quiet wedding in the little park that evening, with Roslyn's old loyal companions in attendance. And the holy stars, the gentle dew spoke to the rapturous Cecile—and her soul in return!

Marie Corelli's Appeal

It cannot be said that a light of literature went out with the passing of Marie Corelli, but it will be impossible for the historian who essays to describe the literary taste of her generation to ignore the author of "The Romance of Two Worlds." Her appeal was not to the intellectual elite, and yet she was one of the favorite novelists of Queen Victoria, was found fascinating by the exquisite Elizabeth of Austria, was read by the elegant Alexandra of England. This royal favor denotes nothing as to the artistry of her work, but it signifies the remarkable catholicity of her appeal, declares the New York Evening World. The melodramatic quality, the weird touch of mystery, were enough to have placed her among the "best sellers." But her vogue has been due in large measure to the spiritualism which permeates her novels.

The queen in the castle and the peasant in the cabin are alike in a hunger for impressions of the life beyond. Miss Corelli ministered to this desire to penetrate the veil. Whatever the critics may think or say, they cannot deny her the distinction that few among the greater artists have shared, of numbering her followers from the man with the hoe to the woman with the tiara and the crown.

Success Means Hard Work

The genius of success is work; the man who will not work more than eight hours a day will not get anywhere. Discontent never made a man out of a two-legged lazy creature. That is why so many men are miserable. Notwithstanding a common belief to the contrary, money and brains are generally in partnership.—John Candee Dean.

Wisdom and Reason

Wisdom one day said to Reason: It were well to love one's enemies and return good for evil. Reason that day, tip-toe on the loftiest peak in its kingdom, at last was fain to agree. But Wisdom is not yet content and seeks ever further alone.—Maeterlinck.

Soft Drinks in U. S.

Each year thirsty Americans consume 4,000,000,000 bottles of soft drinks, and this total does not include beverages such as near beer made from cereals. These drinks come from 10,000 bottling establishments and over 110,000 soda counters. The skilled chemist has provided a host of flavors which the consumer cannot distinguish from the original. The aroma as well as the color and flavor of fruits is being imitated. These beverages contain nothing dangerous to health, but the food and drugs act demands that such products be labeled what they are.

Wild dogs do not bark. Some of them have curious little cries, but the bark is a development of the canine in captivity. The wild dog usually runs in packs like the wolf. This imported rough tweed in brown and red that is woven right into the material is quite acceptable to most women and promises to be popular this fall.

Scarfs Large Enough to Envelop Entire Figure

A striking feature of the moment is the scarf. From being an occasional accessory, it has become a conspicuous and essential part of the costume. The best designers at Paris and in America are content to repeat tried conservative dress models and to create beautiful and original scarfs. The latest designs are large enough to envelop the figure from head to foot, and they are made of every imaginable fabric, from wool to gauze, from the most gorgeous lengths of brocade to the lightest crepes, in lovely colors or gay prints.

Long scarfs of tulle are bordered with ostrich, all like a floating cloud of rainbow tints. Strips of white crepe de chine or chiffon have ends of velvet, black or colored. A plain length of chiffon of one color is sewn as a foundation for petals of chiffon, in the same or another shade, or a contrasting color, offering opportunity for a wide variety of delightful color harmonies. This felicitous idea has evolved some of the most intriguing creations such as simply "make" any costume, even the most conventional.

That the genius of the best artists has been put to the creating of the scarf feature of the season's mode is seen in the daring yet wholly enchanting novelties. Ivory crepe printed in huge blocks of orange, terra cotta and gray; pale yellow, with flower border or mauve, rose and blue; white deeply pointed with black, and many other striking combinations of white and black. They are printed, embroidered, hand-painted, and they are the rage of the hour.

Wind Yarn in Skeins; Wash in Warm Water

With the present sensible vogue for knitted wear, it frequently happens that something has to be raveled and reknit. Possibly new yarn will have to be added to complete the garment, writes a correspondent.

After several experiences in which the usual procedure was followed of winding the raveled yarn tightly in a ball to get the kinks out of it, dissatisfaction grew because of the obvious difference between the knitting made of the new and the old. Then an experiment was tried and proved so successful that it seems worth while to pass what was learned along.

The raveled yarn was wound into skeins (not too large) rather than balls. The skeins were tied at either end with a small piece of clean, white cord. This was to prevent tangling. A quite warm soapy water prepared with soft water and a bland white soap was used, and the skeins washed in this and well rinsed in water of the same temperature.

The wool was then squeezed rather than wrung as dry as possible, and hung directly over the kitchen range or a hot air register, as it was desirable to dry the yarn quickly. During the drying process it was shaken vigorously every few minutes.

It was soon quite dry and delightfully soft and fluffy. Every kink had disappeared. More than that, the color was brightened or freshened, because any soil had been removed and the fibers restored to their original condition of softness and cleanness.

The knitting now proceeded with the utmost satisfaction, and since that time no yarn has been reknit in our home without being washed and dried in this manner.

Lesson for September 7

JESUS HEALS A NOBLEMAN'S SON

LESSON TEXT—John 4:46-54.
GOLDEN TEXT—"I am the way, the truth, and the life."—John 14:6.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Heals a Sick Boy.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Heals a Nobleman's Son.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Belief in Jesus—What It Has Done and Will Do.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Should We Expect From Faith?

The glorious revival among the Samaritans being over, Jesus, with heart yearning for His countrymen, goes back into Galilee. When He began His work there it was not appreciated as it should have been. His own testimony is that a prophet hath no honor in his own country. Having made a reputation elsewhere He now came back to them.

I. The Nobleman's Earnest Plea (vv. 46, 47). This father's heart was in deep anguish because of the critical illness of his son, but he had the good sense to go to Jesus in his distress. Parents should eagerly bring their children to the Great Physician. This affliction was used to bring him to Jesus. Many do not think of Jesus until overwhelmed with grief and distress. It is need that always brings men to Jesus. Even when human physicians fail the case is not hopeless, for there is no case too hard for Christ and there is no disease too difficult nor sorrow too great but relief can be found in Him. This is true of our physical ills, but it is pre-eminently true of our souls. We see here that a rich and influential man is in distress, showing that the rich and exalted are no more exempt from afflictions and anxiety than are the poor. Cares and trouble come to all alike. The young are liable to disease and death as are the old. This nobleman learned of Jesus through the testimony of another (v. 47). Had not some one told him about Jesus he would not have called upon Him. Before lost men can call upon the Lord some one must tell them about Him (Rom. 10:14, 15).

II. The Testing of the Nobleman's Faith (vv. 48, 49).

In his experience we find an illustration of the development of belief. He had faith, but not an intelligent faith. Before help could be given his attitude of mind must be changed. Jesus declared, "Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe," showing that the nobleman's faith was such as was based upon signs and wonders. The man needed something more than the healing of his son. He must needs know Christ as Savior as well as Healer. He did not allow himself to be put off, but insistently demanded, "Sir, come down ere my child die." This shows that he was now willing to make any experiment to save his boy. His very impotency forced him to lay hold upon the Lord. Jesus desired this man to possess a faith which was based upon His naked word, not mere signs and wonders. The way of Jesus is to first reveal Himself as a Savior and then as a Healer.

III. The Nobleman's Faith Victorious (vv. 50-54).

Through his testing he passed with good advantage. He is now ready to receive the Lord's own word, "Go thy way; thy son liveth." These words created true faith and the man stepped out upon them. Because he believed the words that Jesus spoke unto him he went his way. Faith increases in brightness the longer it is exercised. The foundation upon which he reposed his faith was the words of Jesus. On his return his faith met with confirmation. His servant met him and told him that his son was alive. Upon inquiry he found that the recovery of his son was from the very hour in which Jesus spake the words. This was such an unmistakable evidence of the deity of Jesus that not only the nobleman, but his household, was won for Christ. This affords us an example of the beauty of household religion. May we all learn that the words of Jesus are reliable. That which He promises is just as sure as though it had already come to pass. The salvation of the one who believes in Jesus is just as sure as though he had been in heaven and seen his name in the Book of Life. Anxiety for the son brought salvation to the whole house.

Evangelism

"Evangelism is not merely a work of love. It is the sheer law of self-preservation. The heathenism which is creeping along the fences of society is scattering its seeds on both sides. If Christians do not make the world better, the world will surely make the church worse."—Herald of Holiness.

Innocent Revenge

Care of the Eyes.
There is a direct relationship between the condition of the eyes and the condition of the body generally, according to the national committee for the prevention of blindness. In consequence persons recovering from serious illness may subject their eyes to severe strain by reading small type or poorly printed matter. The committee advocates that books selected for invalids should be printed in large, distinct type, and that patients should not try to read too many books while in a weakened stage.

HERRICK REFRIGERATORS

The Big Difference In Refrigerators

The main object of any refrigerator, of course, is the preservation of foods. The refrigerator that will keep foods in perfect condition longest is naturally the refrigerator you want—provided it doesn't increase your ice bills.

The Herrick answers those requirements with facts—not claims. And it does even more. It actually decreases your ice bills while giving you more effective food preservation.

And why? Simply because the Herrick is far more than an ice box—far more than a cold storage place. It is built on the scientifically demonstrated principle that more than merely cold air is necessary to keep foods in good condition for any great length of time.

Perhaps the biggest essentials to scientifically correct refrigeration are—

- No. 1. Circulation of cold dry air.
- No. 2. Effective insulation.
- No. 3. Air-tight construction.

That the Herrick has these necessary essentials is a demonstrated fact.

Many proofs of the truth are visible even to the least informed purchaser. Others are hidden within the walls of the refrigerator, but nevertheless there, performing their functions so important to good health and economy.

The House of Commons.

The British house of commons had its origin in the reign of Henry III in 1258, when Simon de Montfort, earl of Leicester, ordered two knights from each shire, and deputies from certain boroughs to meet such of the barons and clergy as were favorable to his cause, with the view to strengthening his own power against that of the king. Triennial parliaments were instituted by the law of 1641. On the accession of George I in 1714 the Septennial act fixed the duration of parliament at seven years.

Desert heat, thunder storms and roadless canyons confronted 200 members of a Paramount motion picture company as they left Flagstaff, Arizona, for Lee's Ferry, southern Utah.

The caravan faced hardships of the pioneers they imitate to secure authentic locations and local color for Zane Grey's "The Heritage of the Desert" which will be the feature at the Met theater tonight.

Canyon roads obliterated by recent thunder storms were repaired as the party advanced. Motion picture players, road engineers, packers and a tribe of Navajo Indians were included in the train, the trip to location taking a week.

Lee's Ferry is at the head waters of the Colorado, an inspiring desert location described by Zane Grey in his well known novel. The story deals with the primitive warfare between God-fearing pioneers and the bad men of the desert for the possession of water rights. Today this same fight has been changed to a legal conflict affecting national life.

"The Heritage of the Desert" is the third Zane Grey story to be pictured by Paramount. Irvin Willat was the director while featured in the cast are Bebe Daniels, Ernest Torrence, Noah Beery and Lloyd Hughes. Albert Shelby Le Vino made the adaptation.

Being 150 miles from civilization, the party was forced to live primitively. Camp was moved nearly every night and the caravan had all the characteristics of an original "covered wagon" expedition. Part of the journey was along a 62 inch road built on the sheer face of a narrow canyon. A motion picture actor's life is not all it's cracked up to be.

AUSTRALIA HAS SCHEME TO TREBLE POPULATION

Big Armies of British Workers and Other Desirable European Immigrants Are Sought.

London.—Australia is seeking suitable immigrants, and a scheme has been prepared to increase the population to 20,000,000, according to a statement issued by the department of labor and industry in Sydney, N. S. W. The population now is about 5,500,000. The plan, devised by General Eames, is based on army methods, and will be brought before the Colonial Institute for consideration. It is stated that big armies of British workers will be necessary to insure a British basis for the new settlement, and those modern conveniences of civilization which make for permanency must be provided.

To feed and clothe the newcomers during pioneering and at the same time teach them up-to-date methods of earning a livelihood from the soil will call for order and discipline, hence the proposed adoption of army methods.

The suggested conditions for settlers are: British origin or approved European nationality; voluntary agreement for three months as a pioneer worker; a deposit of $100 for six months' pay kept in hand; a basis of 48 hours' work a week; free transport, housing and feeding, care and instruction; hospital accommodation and medical attendance; pay of 75 cents per day of efficiency, deferred pay and, on completion of contract, a potential freehold, complete after three years' domicile as a citizen, with house and equipment in a closer settlement area and a bonus of $480.

At the same time the report of the overseas settlement delegation, appointed by the British government to secure information regarding the prospects of immigrants in Australia, expresses the opinion that the arrangements for the reception and care of immigrants constitutes a solid testimony of the states to shoulder their responsibilities and give the newcomer a fair start.

It is thought by members of the delegation that the nominating system is the safest that can be devised, and it was particularly impressed with the possibilities for the absorption of boys between sixteen and eighteen years of age. The delegation was also impressed with the extensive activities of the state governments in the development of land settlement schemes.

The report dwells on the difficulties in the way of rapid settlement of immigrants, particularly married men with families, on farms of their own, but members of the delegation were struck by the evidence of the ability of townsmen to succeed on the land. It was thought that an absorption of 50,000 persons during the present year could be hoped for.

At a conference of state and federal immigration officers held in Melbourne to consider methods for the training of assisted immigrants, it was decided to recommend that, where the number of arriving immigrants warranted action, farm training depots should be established and the cost should be borne equally by the commonwealth and state governments. The length of training was to be left to the state authorities.

Police Woman Refuses Chair of Criminology

Terrier Adopts Squirrels

Napa, Cal.—At the Edward Maxwell ranch in Coombsville east of Napa, two five-weeks-old gray squirrels are being mothered by a fox terrier, and both squirrels and "mother" seem to be enjoying the experience. Maxwell found the baby squirrels deserted in a nest upon his place, and placed them in charge of the dog, who accepted them with affection.

In Memoriam.

Ira G. Dilley, son of Garrett and Janey Mowery Dilley, was born in Saltcreek township, Pickaway county, Ohio, March 10, 1896 and departed this life at Kingston, Ross county, Ohio, August 23, 1924, aged 28 years, five months and 13 days.

He was left motherless at the age of about four years, when he was taken in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Aldenderfer and reared to young manhood when he started out in life for himself. He spent most of his life in the township in which he was born.

He was of a cheerful disposition and made many friends wherever he went. He was united in marriage with Lee Hall July 22, 1916, and to this union were born three children; Elizabeth Lucile, who died in infancy, Dorothy Maxine and Marvin Eugene, who with the wife survive. He also leaves his father, step-mother, one sister, Mrs. Emmet Deihl, of Springfield, Ohio, and two brothers, Walter and Arlie, of Fairfield county, besides other relatives and a host of friends. He was a member of the Lutheran church.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank those who so kindly assisted during the sickness and death of our beloved husband and father, Ira G. Dilley. We thank the pallbearers, the choir, the minister for his consoling words and the Ladies' Aid of Tarlton for the beautiful flowers, also the K. K. K., for the beautiful floral tribute and the services held at the grave.

Salmon Great Travelers.

Experiments with the marking of salmon carried out under the direction of the fisheries board of Scotland have yielded some notable results. From the Kyle of Tongue (Sutherland) salmon have moved to places as far apart as Loch Broom and Cromarty, Lochinvar and the River Spey. One salmon made a journey of 250 miles in seven days. The record, however, is held by a salmon which traveled from the River Spey to the Eden, near Carlisle, a distance of fully 630 miles.

Liberians Pawn Children.
Sons and daughters are frequently pawned in Liberia when the head of the family is in need of money, and seldom are they redeemed. Girls are highly valued by the natives in the interior of Liberia, because the parents receive a dowry from the husband when a daughter marries, and even after the wedding they can, at any time, demand more from the husband. Fourteen years is the age at which many of the girls marry.

Glass Bottom Ocean Ships Next.
A type of glass-bottom ship that will probably be used in regular ocean-going service, has been perfected by a sea-going pilot. In the bottom of this new ship is a heavy glass window through which a searchlight is thrown on the bed of the ocean. By calculating the angle of the searchlight rays the depth of the ocean can be determined and shoals thus avoided when running through fog or shallow water. The glass window is protected by a valve, also, to avoid flooding should the glass be broken.

New York Village Has Memory of Tom Paine
Grove court in New York is one of those little gems in the residential quarter of Greenwich Village which have been transformed from back alleys into bizarre homes for those of artistic and exclusive tastes; not exclusive so far as income goes, for the rents are well within the means of the middling well-to-do.
You might know where Grove court is located and then walk right by it at night, and, unless you are acquainted with its neighborhood, you would have to hunt for it in the daytime. But open a gate at between Nos. 10 and 12 Grove street, and if the time is the night a veritable fairy scene is opened to your gaze. The houses are quaint, two-story affairs, arranged in the form of an arc, with soft lights framed by the windows upstairs and down and with shaded old English lanterns above the doors and brass knockers on the panels, for all the world like a miniature Pomander walk.
Walk down Grove street to the east and, before reaching West Fourth street, stop at No. 59, and there read on a brass plate the inscription telling you that the house stands on the site of the dwelling where Tom Paine spent most of his declining days. But if you pause at Bleecker street and turn to the right, at No. 309 is the same old tumble-down shanty where he lived for several years before being rescued by Mme. Bonneville. Patriot, soldier and writer, left in solitude because of his "Age of Reason," called infidel and atheist, his friends were few after his return from France, after his providential escape from the guillotine.
One of the new friends who visited him in the Bleecker street home was Robert Fulton, who had many and long talks with him while he was working on his invention, the first steamboat ever built. The old house on Grove street stood in the middle of a block, which was cut away, but always in such a manner as to preserve the site.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

New Oyster Beds.
Twenty miles of oyster beds in the Gulf of Mannar, between Ceylon and the southernmost coast of India, have been discovered. The beds are still young and the earliest date of maturity is 1926. The only other pearl fisheries of any importance in India at present are along the extreme southern coast and the Mergui Islands, off southern Burma. These latter are exploited by Japanese divers and the production enters only slightly into Burmese exports.

Madame X Reducing Girdle
Makes You Look Thin While Getting Thin

Removes 3 to 10 Inches from Waist and Hips
THE Madame X Reducing Girdle is made of scientifically treated live rubber—the same kind prescribed by famous athletic coaches for reducing purposes because of its health-bringing properties. Based on principles of "unconscious massage" that have caused reductions of 5, 10, 20 pounds. Makes you look thinner instantly. Fits as snugly, yet flexibly as a kid glove. Worn over the undergarment thru which the live rubber firmly holds the excess flesh, gently massaging it away. Its principles highly recommended by physicians. Healthiest way to reduce. The only girdle long enough to reduce the thighs.

Legend of Unicorn

Medieval conception of the unicorn as possessing great strength and fierceness may have been partly due to the fact that in certain passages of the Old Testament, the word R'em (translated in the authorized version, unicorn) refers to a two-horned animal, savage and quarrelsome, subdued to gentleness only at the side of a virgin. The idea of purity is included in the significance of the unicorn used in many coats of arms.

Of the Same Family

Bulbat is a local name given to the night hawk. Both the night hawk and whippoorwill are nightjars. The markings on the throat of the night hawk make it easily distinguished from the whippoorwill. This white mark is shaped like the letter V, a broad white bar, which extends across the first primary wing feathers. This is plainly visible when the bird is near by and flying.

Three Feeds Now Cause Soft Pork

Problem Becoming Nationwide Because of Increasing Use of Soy Bean.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The feeding of hogs so as to prevent the development of soft characteristics, once thought to be a problem only in those regions where peanuts are fed, is no longer a sectional difficulty, says the United States Department of Agriculture in calling attention to the results which have been obtained during five years of investigation. It is now almost a nationwide problem among hog raisers because of the increasing use of soy beans which also produced carcasses lacking in firmness. There are now three feeds recognized as producers of soft pork, peanuts, soy beans, and rice polish.

Result of Experiments.

At the recent annual meeting at Knoxville, Tenn., representatives of the state experiment stations taking part in these investigations, and representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture, discussed the results obtained in this long series of experiments. This is the first year it has been possible to make definite statements on the influence of soy beans on firmness of hogs. Summaries of the experimental results obtained by the Alabama, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee and Texas agricultural experiment stations in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture during five years' investigation of the soft-pork problem have shown that:

1. Soy beans grazed or self-fed alone or with minerals self-fed through a period of seven to eight weeks to pigs starting at approximately 100 pounds weight and making gains of 40 to 50 pounds produce soft carcasses. Further, the results have shown that the degree of softness of the carcass increases as the gain in weight of a hog on this feed increases.

2. Soy beans grazed or self-fed alone or with minerals self-fed to pigs starting at approximately 100 pounds weight and making at least a moderate rate of gain through a period of seven to eight weeks will not produce firm carcasses even though a subsequent gain in weight has been made by the pigs on corn and tankage equal to that previously made on the soy beans.

3. Soy beans grazed or self-fed with a supplementary ration of 2½ per cent of shelled corn with or without minerals self-fed produce soft hogs when the pigs are started on the feeds at approximately 100 pounds weight and make at least a moderate rate of gain through a feeding period of seven to eight weeks.

4. Rice polish and tankage self-fed, free choice on oat or rye pasture or in dry lot and with or without a small supplement of skim milk hand-fed to pigs starting at 35 to 125 pounds weight and making gains of 30 pounds or more through a feeding period of eight to fifteen weeks, produce soft carcasses.

5. There is a direct relation between immaturity and softness in pigs. When pigs are fed on ordinary feed combinations which are not unusually low in fat content, such as corn and tankage, or corn, middlings and tankage on pasture or in dry lot and slaughtered at a weight of approximately 100 pounds or less they are, in the usual case, soft.

Feeding Corn and Tankage.

6. Hogs fed corn and tankage gradually become firmer as they mature or take on weight and finish. While hogs fed in this way are usually soft at 100 pounds or less, the hardening is progressive, so that when slaughtered at approximately 175 pounds or more they are, in the usual case, hard.

7. Brewer's rice and tankage self-fed, free choice on oat pasture with or without a small supplement of skim milk hand-fed to pigs starting at approximately 60 pounds weight and making gains of 150 to 200 pounds through feeding periods of 12 to 15 weeks produce, in the usual case, extremely hard hogs, in fact, of a degree of firmness distinctly greater than that occurring in corn fed hogs.

8. The mixture of cornmeal 5 parts and peanut meal (hull free) 1 part self-fed with or without supplementary minerals to pigs starting at approximately 80 pounds weight and making gains of approximately 100 pounds through a feeding period of 9 to 10 weeks produce, in the usual case, hard or medium-hard hogs.

9. Results have shown that when the softening feeds and feed combinations—peanuts or soy beans alone, soy beans supplemented with a 2½ per cent ration of shelled corn, or rice polish and tankage (each with or without minerals)—are fed to pigs which have previously received no softening feeds, there is a distinct relation between the degree of softness and the starting weight and the degree of softness which develops in the pigs decreases as the starting weight increases, provided equal gains in weight are made and other factors are uniform. Whether the lighter pig of the higher degree of softness or the heavier pig of the relatively lower degree of softness will be hardened more readily by subsequent feeding of hardening feeds is still undetermined. Experiments to settle this question are now in progress.

In Interesting Bond.

An eastern financial journal has brought to light an interesting bond. It is dated 1865 and was issued on a horse car line. The bond, for $1,000 and is carrying its third set of coupons, having been twice extended from its original maturity in 1880. Although the property has long ago been abandoned the bond is still "going" at 4 per cent and is an underlying lien of the New York railways. It has paid $3,300 in direct interest. If all interest payments had been promptly reinvested at 5 per cent, the original investment in 1865 would have returned almost $25,000 up to the present time. From 1865 to 1900 the bond carried 7 per cent interest.

The Swiss Guard.

The original Swiss Guard was a regiment of royal body guards of the rulers of France, constituted by royal decree, 1616. It was composed entirely of Swiss and so conducted itself that it became world-famous for absolute fidelity and courage. The traditions of the guard were kept up until after the final dissolution of the empire. The papal guard known as the Swiss Guard consists of ten officers and 110 men, picked from Swiss of unblemished character, and, in the case of the officers, of high family. Only Swiss are allowed to serve and privates may not marry during their term of service.

St. Dustan and the Devil.

Dustan, patron saint of goldsmiths, was a painter, jeweler and blacksmith. Being expelled from court, he built a cell near Glastonbury church and there he worked at his handicrafts, says the Detroit News. It was in this cell that tradition says the devil had a gossip with the saint through the lattice window. Dustan went on talking till his tongue was red hot, when he turned round suddenly and caught his satanic majesty by the nose. Dustan is represented generally in pontifical robes, but carrying a pair of pincers in his right hand. The pontificals refer to his office as archbishop of Canterbury and the pincers to the legend of his holding the devil by the nose till he promised never to tempt him again.

Sick Poultry Can Be Cured Any Season of the Year.

Circleville, Ohio R. F. D. 1,
August 26, 1924.

Mr. Fickardt:—

I have raised chickens for many years but my experiences this year have been more trying than any previous season that I can recall. All spring I had been having trouble with my flock, both young and old, and during the month of July I lost about one hundred of my chickens, quite a number had limber neck.

About August 1, I was nearly frantic and did not know which way to turn. I ran across about this time a bottle of Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops and I can say that the results I obtained have fully justified your statements.

One case of limber neck was too sick to take the medicine as the other chickens did, but I gave it some with a medicine dropper thinking then that it was a waste of time, but the next morning it was still around and it finally got well. The rest of the flock have straightened out and they are doing well now.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Lucy Honnald.

Frankly Discussing Natural Gas Facts

COST-OF-SERVICE CHARGE

WHENEVER a person buys anything of a private commercial concern he pays the cost of service in the transfer of the thing bought in addition to the profit upon the merchandise procured.

The expense of doing business is a separate charge from that of investment whether it be in plant equipment in the case of a public utility, or the merchandise stock of the storekeeper. The price at which service is rendered or goods are sold include both items in the total cost.

There is, however, a marked difference in the conduct of the business of a public utility and that of merchandizing. The utility must bring its product directly to your home and there make some investment in property wholly devoted to your service, while the merchant fits up his place of business, buys such stock as he thinks he can sell and there awaits the public's coming to supply its needs. The utility takes its commodity to where you want to use it and keeps it there continually ready for your use, but when the merchant delivers his goods to you or he does not, you pay the cost of delivery just the same, because it is a part of the cost of doing business. It is manifestly unfair that those who transport their own merchandise should be charged for a service they do not receive, yet we never hear of much criticism against the practice.

In the conduct of a public utility all of its patrons receive like service, and the investment in behalf of each is practically the same, but when we look into the income from each by which the investment is sustained we find that there is an unfairness even more pronounced than a charge for merchandise delivery not made. We find by an analysis of accounts that fully seventy per cent of the users of natural gas really do not pay sufficient to sustain the investment within their own property, their proportion of producing and transporting expenses, the account keeping and supervisory service incident thereto. The other thirty percent not only must pay for their own, but make up the deficit incurred in taking care of the seventy per cent of unprofitable customers.

What do you think of this proposition?
